

Launching a foundation to help mothers with postpartum depression

Thai Rath Edition

- lifestyle
- health and beauty

8 Mar. 2022 6:07 a.m.

To provide accurate knowledge and understanding of postpartum depression Pranaiya & Arthur Magoffin Foundation (PAM Foundation) organized the event "Open your heart to talk Let's get to know postpartum depression" by Dr. Maddalena Miele-Norton, a psychiatrist from the United Kingdom and Dr. Yadawee Tangtrongpairote, MD. Psychiatrists, along with Mr. Hamish Magoffin, founders of the PAM Foundation, Jariyadee-Jay Spencer and Saraichat Kunchorn Na Ayudhya, who came to share their real experiences as people who have experienced postpartum depression at Headquarters Sumipol Corporation Co., Ltd.

PAM Foundation "JOGLE"

START: 18 MARCH

FINISH: 3 APRIL

At the event there was also a launch event. PAM Foundation's first fundraising event by Mr. Hamish Magoffin will join the JOGLE program in the United Kingdom for a distance of more than 1,400 km from the northern end of Scots Land descends to the bottom of the United Kingdom at southern Cornwall. It takes a total of 17 days from 18 March 2022 to raise awareness about the foundation. and postpartum depression including raising funds for use in the implementation of the objects A study from 80 countries published in the journal Nature found that postpartum depression affects more than one in six mothers, with each person having a different nature and severity. In addition to the high statistics of postpartum depression Other psychiatric symptoms can also be found in mothers before and after childbirth. These issues are often not discussed widely. Few people are aware of these conditions. as well as general views in society about psychological problems that are not very positive. As a result, people who suffer from these conditions are concerned about being judged by outsiders.

Mr. Hamish Magoffin with the guests who attended the event.

Hamish Magoffin, the founder of the PAM Foundation, shared his experience and inspiration for the foundation that in 2021, he lost his wife, Pranaiya Oulapathorn and son, Arthur. Sadly gone from postpartum depression Khun Pranaiya is loved by everyone and is a very devoted mother to her children. As for Brother Arthur, he makes people around him happy. Therefore, it was decided to establish a foundation in the name of both of them. With the aim of continuation of Khun Pranaiya's work for society including creating awareness Supporting care and research on postpartum depression and its condition. that occur in the period before and after childbirth These psychiatric conditions are becoming more socially recognized and discussed more openly. related including taking care of those close to patients in Thailand Still able to develop a lot PAM Foundation Therefore, it was established with three main objectives in working on postpartum depression and mental illness. Other related medicines include creating awareness and providing accurate information. Caring for new parents and additional research studies

Oulapathorn Family...“Thongpol-Aranya-Jiraphan-Pongnadda”.

Can follow video clips of the work. Open your mind to talk. Find out more about Postpartum Depression” and details about the Pranaiya and Arthur Magoffin Foundation (PAM Foundation) and JOGLE, as well as the Foundation's activities, can be found at their website. www.pamfoundation.org